Just like that, another year has gone by and we're back together again! Missouri Preservation is pleased to be back in Joplin. Here we are able to offer continuing education opportunities to southwest Missourians as well as individuals from Oklahoma, Arkansas, Nebraska and Kansas.

A theme running through this year's conference is the importance of telling stories and the impact it has on preservation. We are excited to welcome our keynote speaker, Stacy Grinsfelder, and hear her speak more on that topic! As you attend sessions this week, take a moment to contemplate how storytelling can be found in each topic. Even our speakers might be surprised to find the connection!

On behalf of the entire board and volunteers at Missouri Preservation, I'd like to welcome you to Joplin! We hope you'll enjoy your time at the conference and come away refreshed, filled with ideas, and maybe make a few new friends along the way.

WHAT WE DO... Missouri Preservation advocates for, educates about, and assists in the preservation of the architectural and historic landmarks that embody Missouri's unique heritage and sense of place.

WHO WE ARE... Founded in 1976 as the Missouri Heritage Trust, Missouri Preservation has evolved into a respected grassroots network of individuals, organizations and preservation commissions throughout Missouri. We are united in our efforts to preserve the rich and diverse cultural and historic resources of the "Show Me" state.

OUR PRIMARY PROGRAMS...

- Preservation Advocacy
- Honor Awards, our annual recognition of exemplary preservation projects and best practices in preservation.
- Missouri Preservation Conference
- Places in Peril, our annual list of endangered historic places in Missouri.

For more information on Missouri Preservation events and happenings, be sure to become a member!

Important Information

Registration

The registration desk is located in the Foyer/Entry Hall of the Scottish Rite Cathedral. The desk will be staffed throughout the conference in the event that you have any questions.

Sessions

All sessions will be located in the Dining Room (bottom floor) or Auditorium (3rd floor) unless otherwise noted in the program. Tours will meet in the Foyer, look for signage.

Tickets

Tickets are required for tours/workshops and should have been selected during the registration process. In the event that you registered for a tour and no longer wish to attend, please return your ticket to the registration desk. If you wish to be added to the waitlist for a tour, please let the registration desk know.

Transportation

Missouri Preservation will not be providing any transportation for Conference-related activities with the exception of the Historic Black Churches of Joplin tour. Please plan accordingly.

Badges

Please wear your name badge at all times when in the building or attending Conference-related activities.

Trade Show

Don't forget to stop by the Trade Show area and visit our exhibitors! The Trade Show is located in the Tea Room, directly behind registration.

Food & Drink

Missouri Preservation will provide coffee, water and light snacks throughout the three days of the conference. This can be found within the Trade Show area. No food or drink will be allowed in the 3rd floor of the building (the Auditorium).

We will not be providing lunch this year. You can find a list of nearby restaurants open for lunch with your registration packet!

National Register Nomination Basics

1.25 AIA LU

April Scott, Architectural Historian — State Historic Preservation Office

Staff from the Missouri State Historic Preservation Office (SHPO) will discuss the process of listing historic resources on the National Register of Historic Places. Discussion will briefly cover what the National Register of Historic Places is and the benefits to listing. Emphasis will be placed on the key points for evaluation and common issues to avoid in the application process.

9:00 - 10:15 | Auditorium

Building Codes and Preservation

1.25 AIA LU | HSWs

Mike Jackson, FAIA, Architect — Association for Preservation Technology

The International Existing Building Code (IEBC) is the most widely used code for existing structures in the United States. Options and requirements for historic buildings are sprinkled throughout four compliance methods that a design professional can select from; which are often supplemented by requirements from the Fire Code and Energy Conservation Code. One and two-family historic residential projects fall under the International Residential Code, which has no specific alternatives for historic buildings. This presentation will present an overview and approach to navigating these compliance methods in order to select the approach most appropriate to the conditions of a particular historic rehabilitation project. Various codes and standards state that actions that would “threaten or destroy the historic significance of a facility” are the trigger mechanism for alternative design treatments. This presentation will look at the specific use of this language in various codes and identify the administrative protocols such as who makes the assessment and the range of technical remedies.

10:30 - 11:45 | Dining Room

What Can the SHPO Do For You?

1.25 AIA LU

Andrew Dial, Preservation Planner & Grants Manager — State Historic Preservation Office
John Peterson, Certified Local Government Coordinator — State Historic Preservation Office

Preservation happens on the local level. The State Historic Preservation Office (SHPO) supports local preservation efforts through the Certified Local Government Program and sub grants from the Historic Preservation Fund (HPF). This presentation will showcase the benefits of the CLG program to local communities followed by an overview of funding opportunities for historic preservation.

10:30 - 11:45 | Auditorium

What Kind of “Shoes” Does Your Historic Building Wear?

1.25 AIA LU | HSWs

Joseph A Carpenter, PE, LEED, AP, Associate - Structural Engineering — KPFF Consulting Engineers
Sarah Jemison-Parr, Project Engineer - Structural Engineering — KPFF Consulting Engineers

This presentation will go over various building “shoes” aka building foundations that were commonly found in pre-1950s construction in the central part of the United States. We will discuss various historic building code requirements and compare against current day practice for similar conditions. This presentation will review obstacles and solutions with justifying older foundation systems that were designed using standards that vary from current code requirements when altering existing buildings. We will also review strengthening measures and repair detailing for historic renovation and adaptive reuse projects.

1:45 - 3:00 | Dining Room

Rediscovering Jasper County’s Abandoned Cemeteries: Two Successful Case Studies

1.25 AIA LU | HSWs

Rikki Renee Smith — Spill The Tea Genealogy

Abandoned cemeteries dot the countryside throughout Jasper County, Missouri. Join us on a journey as we discover how these neglected treasures can re-emerge from the bramble. What does it take to bring at-risk cemeteries back from the brink? Peace Church Cemetery, likely the most infamous cemetery in Jasper County, suffered from extreme neglect. Very few of the family plots were maintained and hip-high weeds reigned supreme. In 2014 volunteers embarked on a new effort to restore the property. As the City of Joplin’s sesquicentennial approached, efforts to reclaim the cemetery featuring the community’s founding father began at the John C. Cox Cemetery. Late 20th Century efforts laid the foundation for the current restoration work. Passionate leadership, armed with community support and strategic partnerships, can create a sustainable movement to ensure a previously over-run cemetery can thrive. Board governance, succession plans, volunteer management, knowledge of land conservation and cemetery maintenance, funding and grants, engaging events and marketing all play a role.

Green Historic Preservation: Resilience Into the Next Century

1.25 AIA LU | HSWs

Carolina Neal — Neal Group Construction

Human kinds existence depends upon our ability to adapt and mitigate the impacts that climate change has on our communities, regions, countries and planet as a whole. Preserving historic buildings is a tool that communities can use to adapt and mitigate the effects of climate change. Retrofitting and rehabilitating historic buildings with LEED standards creates a circular economy that helps cities reduce their carbon emissions, increases their resilience and promotes a new way to economic growth and healthy living.

The Importance of Telling Your Story

Stacy Grinsfelder

1.25 AIA LU

Preservation needs people. With the number of historic buildings being demolished at an alarming rate, it's more important than ever to inspire future generations of specialized tradespeople, DIYers, academics, and activists. In this seminar, Stacy Grinsfelder will share anecdotes from her many interviews with people just like you who are helping to grow the preservation community through storytelling and teaching. Stacy will share tips and tricks to tap into your unique experiences and amplify them to advance the movement.

Water Towers: History, Typology and Identification

1.25 AIA LU | HSWs

Karen Daniels, Senior Historic Preservation Specialist — Missouri Department of Transportation

Municipal water towers and stand pipes are landmarks in many communities, and are often among the first visible sights of smaller communities. This session will explore the history of these structures and their role in the municipal water system. We will also explore their changing typology, and how advances in engineering influenced their design. Participants will learn how to research municipal water systems and individual water towers, major companies involved in water tower construction in Missouri, basic typology and construction eras of water towers.

10:30 - 11:45 | Dining Room

Lime Plaster: Conservation, Repair and Renewal of Historic Plasterwork

1.25 AIA LU | HSWs

Frank Rosario, Senior Technical Manager — Trivers

Eric Aulbach, Owner/Plasterer — Plastering by Eric Aulbach, Inc.

Lime plaster was a standard interior wall finish for thousands of years. But like so many traditional building products and construction techniques that predate the early twentieth-century, traditional plaster of lime, water, and sand is largely forgotten and therefore dismissed by present day construction trades that have never encountered it. Preservation of the authenticity and functional integrity of historic construction demands a re-appreciation of this time-tested material. Failure to understand the subtle distinctions between present-day gypsum-based plaster and historic lime plasters can compromise performance, appearance, and longevity of remedial efforts at historical conservancy.

Rehabilitating The Olivia Apartments [TICKET REQUIRED]

2.5 AIA LU | HSWs

Jeff Neal, Owner — Neal Group Construction

Ryan Reed, Tax Credit Coordinator — Rosin Preservation

The 5-story Olivia Apartments opened in 1906 as an apartment hotel for wealthy clientele visiting Joplin. Patrons were treated to luxurious finishes and state of the art amenities, differentiating the Olivia from other apartment hotels in the city. The building housed 34 apartments, as well as a dining room and kitchen on the top floor. The building was continuously inhabited until 2006 when the City of Joplin declared it unsafe. In December 2020, a fire destroyed most of the 5th floor and the main stairs/circulation core, leaving the building open to the elements. In 2021, the building began to be rehabilitated, utilizing both state and federal historic tax credits. /This active session will provide a walking tour of the building to show the transformation since work began in 2021. Neal Group Construction's CEO Jeff Neal will lead the tour with other members of the rehabilitation team, including the historic tax credit consultants from Rosin Preservation, to discuss the details of the project. Closed toed shoes required.

Move It or Lose It

1.25 AIA LU | HSWs

Jesse Francis, Cultural Site Manager — St. Louis County Parks

Saving historic structures... leave them where they are and lose them to the bulldozers, or move them? Buildings with histories in Saint Louis County were headed towards a landfill if something wasn't done. For over 36 years speaker Jesse Francis oversaw the movement of eighteen houses, barns and commercial buildings to Faust Park Historic Village in order to save them from the wrecking ball. This session will review a number of buildings saved via relocation and the discussions and technical requirements behind the process.

1:45 - 3:00 | Auditorium

Raising the Roof —Hidden Details of Historic Roofing Systems

1.25 AIA LU | HSWs

Brian Lockie, Business Development Specialist — Renaissance Historic Exteriors

Let's explore the components of historic roofing systems (slate, clay tile, and copper) and how they're constructed. Once we've identified the various roofing systems, we can learn how to identify problem areas and concerns, and how to best address them.

3:15 - 4:30 | Dining Room

Interpreting Historic Buildings: Creating Educational Programming Around the Built Environment

Jacob Stotler, Interpretive Specialist

Lauren Baker, Interpreter — Cuivre River State Park

Learn about multiple different types of educational programs and how they can benefit and help advocate for your historic sites. From tours to hands-on educational programs, you'll be presented with a wide range of interpretive resources that can help you communicate the history and importance of your preservation projects. You'll get to participate in short hands-on example programs for a first-hand look at how you can put interpretation in preservation to action!

Iconic Joplin Awards Ceremony

Thursday, June 8 | 5:30 - 6:30

202 South Joplin Avenue

In celebration of Joplin's 150th Birthday, six teams of teens collaborated to build local landmarks out of LEGO bricks. They include the Bonnie & Clyde Hideout; Crystal Cave; Grand Falls; Joplin Public Library (20th & Connecticut); Joplin Union Depot; and the Olivia Apartments. Each creative build highlights unique features of the landmarks and their histories. Teams received expert assistance and/or behind-the-scenes tours from historians, architects, engineers, and LEGO gurus. Awards to be presented include People's Choice Award for the public's favorite; Technical Award for best authentic reproduction of the landmark; Creativity Award for most innovative design and/or use of bricks; and Storytelling Award for the team that best relates history through their build. The presenting sponsor for the Awards Ceremony is Neal Group Construction. Refreshments provided by Post Art Library.

A Guide to Missouri's Roadside Parks

1.25 AIA LU

Karen Daniels, Senior Historic Preservation Specialist — MO Department of Transportation

Ashley Porter, Senior Historic Preservation Specialist — MO Department of Transportation

Tyler Holladay, Intermediate Historic Preservation Specialist — MO Department of Transportation

This session will explore the roadside parks that dot Missouri's state highways and help participants understand their history and development. The session will discuss the common features of pre-World War II and Post-World War II roadside parks, how and why they are different, and the difference between roadside parks, scenic overlooks and roadside tables. Unique features of some of Missouri's roadside parks will be highlighted and discussed.

9:00 - 10:15 | Dining Room

Revitalizing Vacant Buildings: Incorporating Community Needs for Successful Reuse Planning

1.25 AIA LU | HSWs

Jacob Rohter, Outreach Coordinator — Missouri Department of Natural Resources, Brownfields Voluntary Cleanup Program

Sabine Martin, PhD, President — CTOR Solutions, Kansas State University Technical Assistance to Brownfields (TAB)

Toni Prawl, State Historic Preservation Officer — Missouri State Historic Preservation Office

Lori Haun, Executive Director — Downtown Joplin Alliance

Projects bringing new life to historical structures often face significant environmental concerns. Many of these buildings contain hazardous materials such as asbestos, lead based paint, petroleum products, pesticides, heavy metals, etc. The specter of hazardous chemical contamination may have contributed to former owners abandoning the property, lending institutions reluctant to provide financing for purchase and redevelopment, and developers avoiding investment in the properties. Despite the opportunities they represent, these "brownfield" sites remain vacant due to real or perceived hazardous substance contamination and liability. The Brownfields Assessment Program provides technical assistance to help communities assess and remediate properties, and can provide environmental assessments at no cost. The Technical Assistance to Brownfields program (TAB) at Kansas State University helps communities address their blighted properties by providing several free services, such as "visioning", where the community brainstorms potential future uses of a property and a conceptual drawing of the favored reuse is developed. In early 2023 KSU TAB facilitated the reuse visioning of the former Joplin Union Depot. Conceptual reuse plans were developed as a part of a class project within the South Dakota State University School of Design, a KSU TAB partner. Process and outcomes of this project will be presented as a case study.

Main Street: Preservation in Action

1.25 AIA LU | HSWs

Ben White, Senior Program Specialist — Missouri Main Street Connection

What is Main Street? Main Street in preservation, in action. This session will focus on the Main Street 4-point approach and how this methodology has successfully been utilized in over 2000 communities across the United States to revitalize older, traditional districts.

10:30 - 11:45 | Dining Room

Setting History Wright: Community Christian Church Historic Structure Report

1.25 AIA LU | HSWs

Amanda E. Moore, AIA — Preservation Society of Asheville and Buncombe County, North Carolina

Historic structure reports are important preservation planning tools. They document the current conditions of a historic property, outline critical repairs required, and provide a list of treatment recommendations to protect the structure and help guide future projects. Beyond that, these reports thoroughly document a historic property's history and record how the property has changed over time. This research leads to a greater understanding of the property and its character-defining features to ensure future work doesn't damage the place's historic integrity. This session will look at the importance of historical research, how to collect this information and decipher it. Sometimes this research can lead to setting history right, like the Historic Structure Report of the 1942 Frank Lloyd Wright Community Christian Church that will be used as an example.

Tour of Joplin's Union Depot [TICKET REQUIRED]

Lori Haun, Executive Director — Downtown Joplin Alliance

Joplin's Union Depot opened to the public on June 30, 1911. The reinforced concrete structure was designed by Louis Curtiss and served the Kansas City Southern, Missouri-Kansas-Texas and Santa Fe Railroads. The building has sat vacant since the last train left the station in 1969. Many ideas for redevelopment have never come to fruition and it was listed as a Missouri Place in Peril in 2021. The building is owned by the State Historic Preservation Office of the Missouri Department of Natural Resources. With the help of Downtown Joplin Alliance and the TAB program at Kansas State University, building advocates are working to find new viable uses for this iconic structure. Attend the tour to see this space in person — but check out Revitalizing Vacant Buildings: Incorporating Community Needs for Successful Reuse Planning and Endangered Properties Program — Saving Your Community's Historic Treasures to get a more in-depth look at what the community is doing to save this building! Ticket required & space limited (check at registration desk for availability). Signed waiver and closed-toed shoed required.

Endangered Properties Program — Saving Your Community's Historic Treasures

1.25 AIA LU | HSWs

Lori Haun, Executive Director — Downtown Joplin Alliance

Learn how the Downtown Joplin Alliance has intervened in the local real estate market over the last five years by purchasing threatened historic buildings using options, bargain sales, or property donations, and finding preservation-minded buyers for them. Using their feasibility study as an example, they will share how they created this revolving fund. They will report on successes to date, and the studies and reports they have needed to market these properties locally and across the region. They will highlight their first few projects and share the highs and lows in undertaking these real estate deals.

Window Workshop (Introductory) [TICKET REQUIRED]

2 AIA LU | HSWs

John Rogers — Phoenix Preservation & Consulting

Kelsie Gray — Kiss My Sash Historic Wood Window Repair & Restoration

Wood. Glass. Putty. Paint. These are the simple components that combine to make a historic wood window, but for many stewards of old homes and buildings, the ins and outs of repairing, restoring, and maintaining original windows can seem anything but simple — it can feel downright mystifying. Join John Rodgers of Phoenix Preservation and Kelsie Gray of Kiss My Sash as they discuss the hows and whys of evaluating, repairing, restoring, and maintaining original wood windows, along with a special emphasis on how to stretch your time and/or monetary resources by prioritizing repair work, mitigating further deterioration, and protecting your investment for future generations to come. The historic Handy Chapel AME Church will be used as a learning lab for this session!
